

A COMPLICATED CASE.

ter came they voluntarily and agreed to restore the money, and he, in turn, was released. The case came up in a new shape. Sanitary inspectors had visited the scene of slaughter and Smith had charged the victim of the ordinary and Schmidt with drug within the city limits. He said that the case was not the penalty, but that they were disconcerted in company with the local law.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WALL STREET, FRIDAY, APRIL 19.—P. M.

The Stock Exchange member still reflects dullness, and as a rule appreciates one self-rotated and unknown to state in a greater degree than one fixed by law and the calendar. For some years past Good Friday has by mutual consent been made a close holiday for the stock market. The day, however, is observed, and has afforded a grateful interval of rest to mind and body. It dates this year with peculiar fitness both as to time and circumstances, and affords a welcome respite from the clamor and excitement which has lately attended the market. Beyond the Stock Exchange, however, business went on as usual, the banks and other financial institutions keeping their doors open, but with few customers to pass the portals. There were no prizes whatever made for stocks, and only limited dealings in gold, at 100 1/2, in settlement for sterling bills by U. S. moneys. In a word the holiday was nearly as close as though it had been a regular business day.

SIXTY STOCKS.

The following were the official closing prices of mining stocks at San Francisco to-day:

THE BRUTAL NEGRO, Sam Steenburgh.

Hanged at Fonda, N. Y.

A "BAD NIGGER."

He Confesses Murders, Burglaries and Incendiarisms.

KILLING ARMY OFFICERS?

Robert McEvoy Pays the Extreme Penalty at Aiken, S. C.

His Crime, Sentence, Escape, Recapture and Death.

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.)

FONDA, N. Y., April 19, 1878.

Samuel Steenburgh, the most brutal negro ever known in these parts, was hanged here to-day.

He died like most of his class, expecting God to forgive him the most of his crimes, and the sheriff would be troubled, and called for two companies of militia, but when the ten or twelve thousand curious spectators arrived it was apparent his tears were exaggerated. The morning was bright, the sun shining pleasantly, and the crowd was more intent on enjoying the delightful sight than seeking to cheat the sheriff of his fees.

ONE OF STEENBURGH'S CRIMES.

The specious crime of which "Sam" has forfeited his life was of a brutal character, and the chain of circumstances which convicted him was strong and convincing. On Saturday, the 17th day of November last, Jacob S. Parker, a farmer, residing at Mineville, N. Y., went to Amsterdam to some trading, having in his possession a check for $100, which he had received for the sale of a horse.

This check he had cashed at one of the banks in a village, and after making some purchases he started with a friend to "have a time," and after visiting several of the saloons he spent a part of the day in a low den at the end of the town. He became intoxicated.

"SAM" KILLS PARKER.

In the evening he went into Dora's saloon, on "Boatie Row," where he met Sam Steenburgh. That meeting sealed the unfortunate man's fate, for Sam, as the sequel shows, seeing his money he made up his mind to "keep on" to him, which he did, and he never let go his hold until his poor drunken victim lay crushed and dead. Parker was not missed until some boys discovered his body about four o'clock on Sunday afternoon, in the bushes in a ravine, on the farm of George Ross, just east of the village. On the head of the poor victim was found a huge noose of rope, and the head was crushed beyond human semblance.

ARREST AND CONVICTION OF THE NEGRO.

Suspicion at once rested upon Sam, as he was the last person seen with Parker, and being of a disreputable character he was placed under arrest. Quite a large sum of money was found on him (a very unusual thing for him) and a knife, and on his clothes and the money were stains of blood. He could give no creditable account of himself after he was last seen with Parker, and the Governor's jury held him.

At the February session of court, before Justice Landon, he was tried, convicted of the crime and sentenced to be hanged July 19.

His counsel made strenuous efforts to save him, but the evidence was too strong, and the jury returned a verdict of guilty.

A VIOLATION OF THE LAW.

After the sentence had been passed upon him he became very violent to prison and at one time threatened the life of his keeper. The sheriff then placed him in the hands of a private keeper, and he remained there for about two weeks ago he strongly protested his innocence of the crime of which he was convicted and was kept in prison until he was hanged.

WOULD TELL ONLY FOR PAY.

On Wednesday, April 11, he told his keeper that he would tell the truth if he was paid $100.

Here again, after he had agreed to confess, was his regret for money shown. Before he would utter a word he demanded $100, and when he was paid he confessed to the crime of which he was convicted.

THE CONFESSION.

I was about seven or eight years old when I left home; I first ran away from home for a day, and then for a week, and then for a month, and then for a year, and then for two years, and then for three years, and then for four years, and then for five years, and then for six years, and then for seven years, and then for eight years, and then for nine years, and then for ten years, and then for eleven years, and then for twelve years, and then for thirteen years, and then for fourteen years, and then for fifteen years, and then for sixteen years, and then for seventeen years, and then for eighteen years, and then for nineteen years, and then for twenty years, and then for twenty-one years, and then for twenty-two years, and then for twenty-three years, and then for twenty-four years, and then for twenty-five years, and then for twenty-six years, and then for twenty-seven years, and then for twenty-eight years, and then for twenty-nine years, and then for thirty years, and then for thirty-one years, and then for thirty-two years, and then for thirty-three years, and then for thirty-four years, and then for thirty-five years, and then for thirty-six years, and then for
